5 Equally unsound as a reason for this radical change in our public policy regarding nuisaness is the artement that modern science will prevent this abattoir from being a nuisanee. To any unprejudiced mind the experience of other cities furnishes conclusive evidences that this experiment should not be tried in the neighborhood of our chief business property and the centre of our city. Dr. Levy, after his investigation of the subject during his very brief stay in New York City in the month of October, states that he was unable to find any smell produced by the two abattoirs he visited. But this winess states nothing about an abattoir during the hor moaths of a climate such as ours. Dr. Darlington, president of the Baard of Health of New York City, completely answers Dr. Levy when he writes: "It must be further remembered that no plant of this character can be conducted at all times without any nuisance whatsoever. And no abattoir should be creeted in or near a large husiness or residential soction of any city, for the reason that unavoidably at times it will be a very serious nuisance.

that one abuttoir, killing about first animals a day, erected at a cost of hale a million dollars, operated with special care, and having a special trade, to which its owner could sell at special care, and having a special trade, to which its owner could sell at a very advanced price the products of his abattoir, was conducted without being a muisance. Formerly in that city 156 of these nuisances existed, but now the Board of Health has gotten rid of sixty-nine of the worst. Its Director of Health, Dr. Coplin, says that of the remaining eighty-seven cighty-five of them were nuisances, and he was not certain that he should not say sighty-six. No stronger arguments could be furnished for the refusal of this privilege to Forbes & Company than this experience of Philadelphia. Are you to be asked, goutlemen of the Council, to gamble on Mr. Forbes being able, despite our past experience with his firm, to show himself the equal in the operation of his abattoir to the one costly and expensive shattoir in Philadelphia out of its former 1562. Would any business man seriously take such a chance in his private affairs, and are you to be less vate affairs, and are you to be less careful in your discharge of the great trust given you for the comfort and health of all our citizens? To those two questions there can be but one answer, and that answer will be, we hope, a refusal on your part to lend yourself to an experiment which reverses the former policy of this city, and is contrary to the experience of f established and it proved unobjectionable. It would open the dear to the establishment of others in the same visinity, which almost certainly would prove objectionable and would deteriorate the value of property.

Mr. Christian then closed the argument on the subject with a speech in which he ursed the impossibility of abating a ministrate once granted a franchise, and declared that the burden was improperly put upon opponents of the ordinance.

The meeting then adjourned.
